

YAN Fashan

Personal Information

Born in Dec, 1951, in Shanghai

Education Backgrounds

March 1995- July 1998 post-graduate School of Economics, Fudan University, (Awarded Ph.D of Economics by Fudan University in July 1998.)

Sep 1978 - July 1981 graduate School of Economics, Fudan University,

Sep 1973- Jan 1977 undergraduate School of Inorganic Chemical Industry, East China University of Chemical Industry

Academic Experience and Position

June 1982-Feb 1993 Lecturer

March 1993 - Feb 2003 Associate Professor

March 2003 - now Professor

Teaching and Scientific Research Fields

The Main Research Direction: Study on the Capital, Environmental Economics, Socialist Economic Theory

Recent Teaching Experience: Undergraduate, Postgraduate, Ph.D

Main Research Results:

Works: "The Future Interests - Research on the Sustainable Development of China's Economy", "Introduction to Environmental Economics", "The Abridged Textbook for the Capital", "On Environmental Benefits", "The History of Socialist Economic Thoughts", etc

Papers: "The Chinese Economy and Sustainable Development", "Fetishism under the Socialist Market Economy", "Economic Development and Government Environmental Policies", "Several Thoughts on the Reform of State-Owned Enterprises", "Upholding and Developing Marxism Theory of Labor Value", "Economic Globalization and China's Economic Structure Adjustment", "Economic Globalization and Northeast Asia Economic Cooperation" "The Environmental Benefit of the Socialist Market Economy", etc

(3) Projects:

The Humanities and Social Science Fund of Shanghai: The Development of Environmental Protection Industry in Shanghai in the New Century

Project Funded By Environmental Protection Bureau of Anhui Province: Measures of the Development Environmental Protection Industry in Bengbu